

"During the first nine years which elapsed after the institution of their order the Knights of the Temple lived in poverty, religiously devoting all the money which was sent to them from Europe to the advantage of the Holy Land and the service of pilgrims; and though knights, and engaged in constant warfare against the infidels, their poverty and moderation were such that Hugh de Payens and his companion, Godfrey of St Omer, had but one war-horse between them—a circumstance which they afterwards, in their brilliant period, commemorated by their seal."

HOW MODERN KNIGHTS TEMPLARS TRAVEL.